"I've been buying things from dealers from all over the world for a good 12 to 14 years. I may just get a very small door knocker, or I might buy a whole sectional sofa. Many of these pieces have ended up in my homes, and it's hard for me to let go of anything. I'm more of a buyer than a seller. Actually, I can't remember selling anything of my own till now."

← Home WHERE DID YOU SHOP FOR MOST OF THESE PIECES?

“Belgium, Amsterdam, England, France, Spain, and of course Italy, Germany, and the Americas. I think that’s most of the list. I love to shop the Paris flea markets still. It’s an amazing place to go because the range of everything is just off the charts.”

WHAT'S YOUR PHILOSOPHY ON HUNTING FOR ANTIQUES AND VINTAGE?

"I think if you're buying things you love, you're always good no matter what. I love really simple antiques—antiques that have a very simple form but a really good material. And I like things that remind me of where they came from."

IS THERE SOMETHING YOU'RE ALWAYS ON THE LOOKOUT FOR?

"I love wood that can tell a story just in the patina. I love a good cerused oak. You look back to the '20s and earlier and you see all these amazing rooms paneled in that oak, and it's just beyond gorgeous. It's one of those things that I just can't help myself."

ANY FAVORITE DESIGN ERAS?

"I like the '70s a lot, and I have for quite a while actually. I have a lot from that period in my home, and I've been buying '70s pieces for probably 10 years. I like them because they're usually very masculine, and I like the materials a lot. Right now my eye is on the geometric forms that were '70s and materials like suede and leather. But when I first started buying things the '40s were very popular, so I have a fair amount of '40s French pieces also."

WHAT INSPIRES YOU?

"I love architecture, and I pull a lot of inspiration from historical records. I look at a lot of books by architects from the golden age of the 20th century. My other inspiration really comes from nature because I'm outdoors a lot. And the outdoors is actually more important than the indoors to me in my life."

WHAT ARE KEY ELEMENTS THAT MAKE UP A ROOM FOR YOU?

"You can never really go wrong with tables, chairs, and lamps—those are the three things that there are lots of interesting pieces of, in my opinion. And I think if you bring in some unique side tables or chairs or lamps, it really becomes one of the great layers of a room's story that tells whose home it is."

DO YOU HAVE ANY UNUSUAL COLLECTIONS?

"I have a collection of animal-themed objects. I'm drawn to that. Sometimes there's an amazing carved leg of a table that has the most incredible lion's head, or it could just be a stone sculpture."
